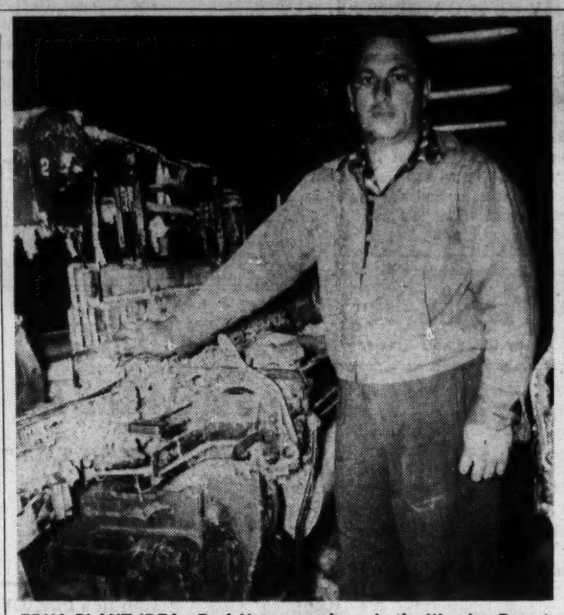
VISIT TEXTORIAN—These representatives to The Textorian from six Cone plants located away from Greensboro are shown watching Albert Plaster set type for last week's Textorian. This was on the tour of the Cone Print Shop which followed a meeting in The Textorian office and lunch at Proximity YMCA as guests of the paper on Tuesday, January 5. They are left to right, Mrs. Edna S. Ellis, Eno Plant, Hillsboro; Miss Mary Frances Williamson, Tabardrey Plant, Haw River; Mrs. Lillie Mae Brewer, Pineville Plant, Pineville; Mrs. Bertha Clayton, Granite Plant, Haw River; Miss Opal Isley, Minneola Plant, Gibsonville, and Mrs. Elizabeth Harviel, Edna Plant, Reidsville.



EDNA PLANT IDEA—Paul Moore, employee in the Weaving Department, second shift, Edna Plant in Reidsville, recently suggested installing an "L" shaped piece of metal over the reed cap to keep the reed from working against the filling fork grate, thereby causing less thin places and broken picks. He received a cash award from Cone Mills.

NEW STAFF MEMBER—Miss Maxine Allen, who this month took over duties as physical director for women and girls at Cone Memorial YMCA, is shown giving bowling instructions to Mildred Johnson. Looking on are Gayle Smith, Becky Long and Agnes Jones. Miss Allen replaces Miss Marjorie Burns, who resigned January 1 to play the golf circuit. Miss Allen holds a degree in physical education from Woman's College. For the past six years, she has been the nation's number two woman duck pin bowler, with the exception of 1952 when she ranked first. She taught physical education in Seaboard and Durham and was health educator at Central YWCA in Charlotte. She served as counsellor at Camp Yonahlosse, Blowing Rock as tennis and dancing instructor.

Cone Dacron-Cotton Fabric Garment In Top Fashion Mag.

January issue of Harper's Bazaar features in an advertisement on page 38 a David Crystal garment of Cone 65 per cent Dacron-35 per cent cotton cloth.

This ad is one of a series of eight in this issue of the magazine, each one of which features a leading fabric of the season as selected by David Crystal and one of the top department stores in the country.

It is believed that the ad will stimulate interest in a wider use of this fabric in the women's fashion field.

Cone sew-in labels and hang tags will appear on all the garments in this promotion as well as on the Crystal "Haymaker" line.

This shows excellent recognition for Cone fabrics both among consumers and among the retail and trades who follow ads in publications very closely.

Y's Men Hear Talk On Alcoholism

James Marvin, member of the Greensboro Citizen's Committee on Alcoholism, spoke to the dinner meeting of Proximity Y's Men's Club last Tuesday night.

Mr. Marvin stated: "Alcoholism is a disease, a departure from health which interferes with the individuals well-being. It is a disease that calls for treatment and one that can be successfully overcome."

The speaker pointed out the different types of drinkers and the various warning signs in drinking habits which may lead to alcoholism.

In conclusion he described the need for understanding of the nature of the illness before we can hope to cure it.

"So long as the moral and ethical elements of our society continue to drive the alcoholic deeper into his pit of despair and helplessness by shame, ridicule and condenmnation —that long will alcoholism continue to make its toll in economic loss and human suffering," declared Mr. Marvin.

Fred Ziprik, presided over the meeting.

Union Bleachery Story In Champion Paper and Fibre Log

Champion Paper and Fibre Company's January issue of "The Log" carries a feature story on one of their oldest and largest customers for caustic soda—Union Bleachery, a Cone plant located at Greensville, S. C.

Stewart Jones, editor of "The Log." with offices in Hamilton, Ohio, visited Union Bleachery last Fall gathering data and taking photographs for his article entitled, "Caustic Soda for King Cotton."

An outstanding night photograph of Union Bleachery appears on the inside back cover of the magazine.

Caustic soda is made at the Carolina Division of Champion. Most of Carolina's caustic is used by the textile industry throughout the East and South. Union Bleachery has been Champion's longest continuous customer for caustic soda, using more than 300 tons a month.

Caustic soda is technically known as sodium hydroxide and has many uses. It is used to cook wood pulp, remove impurities from oil and to make soap. It will dissolve aluminum, wool and cellulose—yet under proper conditions, it makes cotton stronger.

It is important to the textile industry, especially to Union Bleachery where cotton is so important in the field of finished goods.

Union Bleachery has sent a copy of this issue of "The Log" to each of its customers. In a letter accompanying each P. C. Gregory, general manager at Union and assistant vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, states:

"In our day to day work of conducting our operation to serve our good customers, we find ourselves rather sizeably in the role of a customer too.

"A supplier from whom we have long procured one of our most vital needs recently paid us the tribute of writing an article about this

Sound In Principle

The President's message to Congress was expected to bring forth much comment, and it has. It would have been a miracle such as has never occurred before if his recommendations were accepted as made or if they had escaped severe criticism from some quarters. In fact, it would have been indeed surprising if his various proposals had met with the approval of all the members of his own party.

We will all have to admit, however, that he has given Congress a basis for legislative consideration. Therefore, it is not too important whether or not his proposals are translated into enacted legislation just as they were made. It is important, however, that the members of both houses give serious consideration to them and sincerely and conscientiously strive to develop a program of legislation which is conducive to the best interest of the country as a whole.

Paramount among the proposals of the President is the secret strike ballot. It is believed that no proposal which has been made by any president over a long period of time has as adequately met the tests of soundness, fairness and democracy as does that one. It is beyond sound reasoning to understand how any person can brand as "anti-labor" a democratic expression of the wishes of workers through an honest election.

Labor leaders who have made stirring speeches about democracy and the rights of the worker cannot consistently condemn a proposal that the working people themselves should decide by secret ballot whether or not they should strike.

If the giving to the working man the right to act independently by participating in such elections is considered as "anti-labor" by certain labor leaders, then there is serious reason to question their motives, methods and practices.

It is our opinion that of all the recommendations made by the President, the one advocating a fairly conducted secret poll of the employees before strikes has more popular appeal than any of the others. Such a proposal is practical, logical and sound in principle. Only as the result of such elections can the wishes of the majority of the workers be definitely determined.
